

Tilia americana

American Linden

Also called basswood. A large tree, often multi-trunked. Very fragrant, small, creamy-white flowers in June or July, nicely conspicuous against the dark green foliage. Loved by honeybees. Fall color often a good yellow. Transplants easily. Suckers heavily around base of trunk if injured (i.e., by lawn mowers). Foliage often damaged by insects.

Suggested companions: American beech (Fagus grandifolia), sugar maple (Acer saccharum), white oak (Quercus alba), black walnut (Juglans nigra).
